In this unit, students:

- examine how Australian communities are affected by the interconnection between people, places and environments
- investigate the importance of laws and regulations in managing people and environments in Australian communities
- explore the influence of people on the human characteristics of places, including the organisation of space through zoning
- recognise the ways of living of Aboriginal peoples and Torres Strait Islander peoples, particularly in relation to land and resource management
- investigate environmental challenges such as natural hazards and their effect on Australian communities
- explore the principles involved in minimising the harmful effects of natural hazards
- interpret data to evaluate the ways citizens responded to an Australian natural hazard
- propose ways in which citizens can respond to natural hazards and describe the possible effects of actions.

Throughout this unit, students will require ready access to ICT at a whole-class, small-group and individual level. Such ICT include spreadsheet software, graphing software, graphic calculators or mobile device apps. Note: A mobile device is a portable computing device, typically having a display screen with touch input or a miniature keyboard. Ensure that the use of ICT in the classroom, including mobile devices, complies with DET policy requirements - Advice for State Schools on Acceptable Use of ICT Facilities and Devices.

Unit Plan

Plan Name: Unit 2 - HASS Year 5 (V8)

Year: 5

Status: Master

Learning Area/Subject: Humanities and Social Sciences

Duration: 8 Weeks

Australian Curriculum

F-6/7 HASS- Year 5

Year 5 Achievement Standard

By the end of Year 5, students describe the significance of people and events/developments in bringing about change. They identify the causes and effects of change on particular communities and describe aspects of the past that have remained the same. They describe the experiences of different people in the past. Students explain the characteristics of places in different locations at local to national scales. They identify and describe the interconnections between people and the human and environmental characteristics of places, and between components of environments. They identify the effects of these interconnections on the characteristics of places and environments. Students identify the importance of values and processes to Australia's democracy and describe the roles of different people in Australia's legal system. They recognise that choices need to be made when allocating resources. They describe factors that influence their choices as consumers and identify strategies that can be used to inform these choices. They describe different views on how to respond to an issue or challenge.

Students develop questions for an investigation. They locate and collect data and information from a range of sources to answer inquiry questions. They examine sources to determine their purpose and to identify different viewpoints. They interpret data to identify and describe distributions, simple patterns and trends, and to infer relationships, and suggest conclusions based on evidence. Students sequence information about events, the lives of individuals and selected phenomena in chronological order using timelines. They sort, record and represent data in different formats, including large-scale and small-scale maps, using basic conventions. They work with others to generate alternative responses to an issue or challenge and reflect on their learning to independently propose action, describing the possible effects of their proposed action. They present their ideas, findings and conclusions in a range of communication forms using discipline-specific terms and appropriate conventions.

Sustainability

Students will develop the knowledge, skills, values and world views necessary for people to act in ways that contribute to more sustainable patterns of living.

For further information, refer to Sustainability in the Australian Curriculum and the Learning area statements.

Assessing student learning

Assessment name: Managing Australian communities

Assessment description: Students identify how legal and environmental issues in Australian communities can be managed.

In this unit, assessment of student learning aligns to the following aspects of the achievement standard.

By the end of Year 5, students describe the significance of people and events/developments in bringing about change. They identify the causes and effects of change on particular communities and describe aspects of the past that have remained the same. They describe the experiences of different people in the past. Students explain the characteristics of places in different locations at local to national scales. They identify and describe the interconnections between people and the human and environmental characteristics of places, and between components of environments. They identify the effects of these interconnections on the characteristics of places and environments. Students identify the importance of values and processes to Australia's democracy and describe the roles of different people in Australia's legal system. They recognise that choices need to be made when allocating resources. They describe factors that influence their choices as consumers and identify strategies that can be used to inform these choices. They describe different views on how to respond to an issue or challenge.

Students develop questions for an investigation. They locate and collect data and information from a range of sources to answer inquiry questions. They examine sources to determine their purpose and to identify different viewpoints. They interpret data to identify and describe distributions, simple patterns and trends, and to infer relationships, and suggest conclusions based on evidence. They present their ideas, findings and conclusions in a range of communication forms using discipline-specific terms and appropriate conventions.

Monitoring student learning

Student learning should be monitored throughout the teaching and learning process to determine student progress and learning needs.

Each lesson provides opportunities to gather evidence about how students are progressing and what they need to learn next.

Feedback to students

Establish active feedback partnerships between students, teachers and parents to find out:

- what each student already knows and can do
- how each student is going
- where each student needs to go next.

Ensure feedback is timely, ongoing, instructive and purposeful.

Use feedback to inform future teaching and learning.
