Unit Plan

Participating in Australian communities

In this unit, students will explore the following key inquiry question:

- How have people enacted their values and perceptions about their community, other people and places, past and present?

Learning opportunities support students to:

- investigate the key values of Australia's liberal democratic system of government, particularly the values of freedom, equality, fairness and justice
- identify significant past developments, events, individuals and groups that impacted on the development of law and democracy in Australia, particularly the Eureka Stockade and Peter Lalor
- explore representative democracy and voting processes in Australia
- investigate how students enact democratic values and processes through participating in school elections
- generate alternative responses to a democratic issue and propose action by describing the positive and negative effects
- present ideas about proposed actions in response to a democratic issue.

For further information to support teaching of the unit, view the:

- Year level plan
- Teacher lesson overview

Throughout the unit, ensure all students have opportunities to develop their higher-order thinking skills. Students develop skills in thinking when they are encouraged to reflect, inquire, generate, and analyse, synthesise and evaluate. Resources that support higher-order thinking skills:

Throughout this unit, students will require ready access to ICT at a whole-class, small-group and individual level. Such ICT include spreadsheet software, graphing software, graphic calculators or mobile device apps. Note: A mobile device is a portable computing device, typically having a display screen with touch input or a miniature keyboard. Ensure that the use of ICT in the classroom, including mobile devices, complies with DET policy requirements - Advice for State Schools on Acceptable Use of ICT Facilities and Devices.

Australian Curriculum

F-6/7 HASS- Year 5

Year 5 Achievement Standard

By the end of Year 5, students describe the significance of people and events/developments in bringing about change. They identify the causes and effects of change on particular communities and describe aspects of the past that have remained the same. They describe the experiences of different people in the past. Students explain the characteristics of places in different locations at local to national scales. They identify and describe the interconnections between people and the human and environmental characteristics of places, and between components of environments. They identify the effects of these interconnections on the characteristics of places and environments. Students identify the importance of values and processes to Australia's democracy and describe the roles of different people in Australia's legal system. They recognise that choices need to be made when allocating resources. They describe factors that influence their choices as consumers and identify strategies that can be used to inform these choices. They describe different views on how to respond to an issue or challenge.

Students develop questions for an investigation. They locate and collect data and information from a range of sources to answer inquiry questions. They examine sources to determine their purpose and to identify different viewpoints. They interpret data to identify and describe distributions, simple patterns and trends, and to infer relationships, and suggest conclusions based on evidence. Students sequence information about events, the lives of individuals and selected phenomena in chronological order using timelines. They sort, record and represent data in different formats, including large-scale and small-scale maps, using basic conventions. They work with others to generate alternative responses to an issue or challenge and reflect on their learning to independently propose action, describing the possible effects of their proposed action. They present their ideas, findings and conclusions in a range of communication forms using discipline-specific terms and appropriate conventions.

General capabilities

Unit PlanPlan Name: Unit 4 - HASS Year 5 (V8)*Year: 5*Status: MasterLearning Area/Subject: Humanities and Social SciencesDuration: 8 Weeks

This unit provides opportunities for students to engage in the following general capabilities.

Literacy

- Comprehending texts through listening, reading and viewing
- Composing texts through speaking, writing and creating
- Text knowledge
- Grammar knowledge
- Word knowledge
- Visual knowledge

Numeracy

- Using spatial reasoning

Information and communication technology (ICT) capability

- Investigating with ICT

Critical and creative thinking

- Inquiring - identifying, exploring and organising information and ideas
- Generating ideas, possibilities and actions
- Reflecting on thinking and processes
- Analysing, synthesising and evaluating reasoning and procedures

Personal and social capability

- Self-management
- Social management

Ethical understanding

- Reasoning in decision making and actions
- Exploring values, rights and responsibilities

Assessment description: Students investigate democratic values and processes in the school community.

In this unit, assessment of student learning aligns to the following aspects of the achievement standard.

By the end of Year 5, students describe the significance of people and events/developments in bringing about change. They identify the causes and effects of change on particular communities and describe aspects of the past that have remained the same. They describe the experiences of different people in the past. Students explain the characteristics of places in different locations at local to national scales. They identify and describe the interconnections between people and the human and environmental characteristics of places, and between components of environments. They identify the effects of these interconnections on the characteristics of places and environments. Students identify the importance of values and processes to Australia's democracy and describe the roles of different people in Australia's legal system. They recognise that choices need to be made when allocating resources. They describe factors that influence their choices as consumers and identify strategies that can be used to inform these choices. They describe different views on how to respond to an issue or challenge.

Students They locate and collect data and information from a range of sources to answer inquiry questions. They examine sources to determine their purpose and to identify different viewpoints. They interpret data to identify and describe distributions, simple patterns and trends, and to infer relationships, and suggest conclusions based on evidence. Students sequence information about events, the lives of individuals and selected phenomena in chronological order using timelines. They sort, record and represent data in different formats, including large-scale and small-scale maps, using basic conventions. They work with others to generate alternative responses to an issue or challenge. They present their ideas, findings and conclusions in a range of communication forms using discipline-specific terms and appropriate conventions.

Monitoring student learning

Student learning should be monitored throughout the teaching and learning process to determine student progress and learning needs.

Each lesson provides opportunities to gather evidence about how students are progressing and what they need to learn next.

FeedbackFeedback to students

Establish active feedback partnerships between students, teachers and parents to find out:

- what each student already knows and can do
- how each student is going
- where each student needs to go next.

Ensure feedback is timely, ongoing, instructive and purposeful.

Use feedback to inform future teaching and learning.

Reflection on the unit plan

Identify what worked well during and at the end of the unit for future planning.
